

CURRICULUM VITAE

Radim Hrdina

radim.hrdina@upce.cz

Born in Czechoslovakia, Radim Hrdina is 59 years old. He graduated in Organic Technology from the Institute of Chemical Technology, Pardubice in 1980 and in Technical Chemistry from the Institute of Chemical Technology, Pardubice in 1984. Since 1989, he works at University of Pardubice, Faculty of Chemical Technology, Czech Republic. Currently he is full professor at Institute of Organic Chemistry and Technology. His research and development is focused on organic dyes and pigments and recently also on chemical modification of bio-polymers and preparation of novel bio-fibres for medical and cosmetic purposes.

The University of Pardubice is now one of 26 public higher education institutions in the Czech Republic, and the only university in the Pardubice Region. University of Pardubice is a modern and dynamic public higher education institution, which offers Bachelor's, Master's and Doctoral degree study programmes in more than one hundred and thirty specializations. As far as the number of students is concerned, the University belongs with ten thousand students to the middle-sized universities in the Czech Republic. The University consists of seven faculties: Faculty of Chemical Technology, Faculty of Economics and Administration, Jan Perner Transport Faculty, Faculty of Arts and Philosophy, Faculty of Restoration, Faculty of Health Studies and Faculty of Electrical Engineering and Informatics.